Clean Energy Finance and Regulatory Summit to be Held August 9, 2008 on Sanibel Island

Tallahassee, July 3, 2008—The Florida Renewable Energy Producers Association (FREPA) announced that its summer Clean Energy Finance and Regulatory Summit will be held on August 9, 2008 at the Sundial Beach Resort on Sanibel Island.

The Clean Energy Finance and Regulatory Summit will provide the opportunity for a serious discussion and education on the role and needs of clean energy producers in Florida.

There will be a special focus on the Florida Public Service Commission (PSC) rulemaking process specific to Renewable Energy Portfolio Standards (RPS), Renewable Energy Credits (RECs), carbon markets, net metering and more. Such sections will be covered by regulatory experts who are well versed on where Florida is currently with respect to the industry's regulatory challenges and opportunities.

The meeting will also include educational seminars with renewable energy project financing experts and other professionals in the project finance business. We will engage financial institutions eager to know more about renewable development activity in Florida. There will also be a Q & A period with respect to project financing.

The summit is a one day event with a reception to be held the night before (Aug. 8). For those who plan to stay longer, FREPA has made special arrangements for golfing. Please e-mail events@floridaenergyproducers.com for more information.
